A Cow's Alfalfa-Bet Woody Jackson

Black-and-white Holstein cows dot Vermont's landscape: a visual feast of valleys and lakes dissected by the lush Green Mountains. Vermont has the highest ratio of cows to people of any state in our country: one cow for every four people who live there.

Woody Jackson has lived there for more than twenty-five years. He has watched the seasons pass from glorious autumn foliage, to winter's many months of cold and snow, to muddy spring, to the green, green Vermont summertime. Always present are the cows.

This beautiful alphabet book will appeal to adults and young children alike.
