Rome Unbound: Dishonoured Christopher Lee Buckner
78 AD, Britannia

Quintus Liberius Verus is a hero to the men of the Fourth Cohort.

The Roman centurion won the admiration of all after leading the recapture of Elginhaugh from the barbarian horde.

But now the natives are rising up once again.

Calgacus, leader of the Caledonians, has amassed the largest alliance of tribes in the British Isles.

His brother, Drust, laid siege on the Romans and has been captured by Verus and his men.

Calgacus will not rest until he has rescued his brother from the prisons of Elginhaugh, restoring honour to his clan and avenging his people.

Verus, with his native lover, Bryher, at his side, must withstand both the approaching army and the dark shadows of his own past that threaten to overwhelm him.

Elginhaugh must be defended.

And Rome must remain victorious.

But winning the war with dignity means Verus has to stand up to his superiors.

How far is he willing to push?

Can Rome's strength overpower the might of the Britons...?

Or will Verus – and Rome – return to their homeland dishonoured?

Humanity, honour and freedom are all at stake in this epic battle for the control of Ancient Britain. This is the second in the 'Rome Unbound' series, following on from 'Whispers of Rebellion'.

Praise for Christopher Lee Buckner:

'Wolves of Rome combines epic story-telling with convincing historical detail' - Richard Foreman, best-selling author of 'Sword of Rome'.

'Historical adventure fiction at its very best' - Tom Kasey, best-selling author of 'The Dante Conspiracy'.

Christopher Lee Buckner worked as a video game journalist and designer before beginning his career as a writer. He lives in California with his wife and newborn baby girl. He is the author of the novel 'Wolves of Rome'.
